

Yes — that would make the navbar much more useful and professional. Instead of having just Rooms, Facilities, and Pricing, each can open a dropdown with specific options.

Here's a structure I'd suggest for a student hostel:

Rooms

- Single Room — for one student
- 2-in-1 Room — two students sharing
- 3-in-1 Room — three students sharing
- 4-in-1 Room — four students sharing
- Premium Room — more spacious/private option
- Room Comparison — compare room types

Facilities

- Study Room
- Wi-Fi & Internet
- Kitchen
- Laundry
- Washrooms & Bathrooms
- Security
- Parking
- Recreation Area
- Power & Water
- Hostel Rules

Pricing

- Single Room Price
- 2-in-1 Room Price
- 3-in-1 Room Price
- 4-in-1 Room Price
- Premium Room Price
- What Your Payment Includes
- Payment Plans
- Refund & Cancellation Policy

★ My suggested navbar

Home | Rooms ▼ | Facilities ▼ | Pricing ▼ | Gallery | About | Contact |  Book Now

And inside the dropdowns:

Rooms ▼

- Single Room
- 2-in-1 Room
- 3-in-1 Room
- 4-in-1 Room
- Premium Room
- Room Comparison

Facilities ▼

- Study Room
- Wi-Fi & Internet
- Kitchen
- Laundry
- Bathrooms
- Security
- Parking
- Recreation Area

Pricing ▼

- Room Prices
- Payment Plans
- What's Included
- Cancellation Policy